Encircle is a non-profit that aims to provide safe, open environments for LGBTQ people in communities that also offers individual therapy and group counseling services.

With its first center in Provo, UT which opened in 2016 and its second soon to open in Salt Lake City, Encircle strives to provide safe spaces where individuals can seek support but also where the families of such individuals can learn how to support their children through the difficulties associated with coming out and then continue to support them in their journey and lives.

Set to open Easter of 2019, the John Williams Encircle House (pictured bottom left) will be Encircle's second establishment and hopes to be as successful as their current house located in Provo, UT which is “bursting at the seams” due to so many daily visitors.

The new house is named after John Williams, the uncle of Encircle's founder Stephanie Larsen, and is done so in honor of his service and contributions to the organization and the Salt Lake community.

The new house aims to continue providing the same services and opportunities as the one in Provo. In addition Encircle wishes to address the loneliness among Utah's gender and sexual minority youth and young adults and the most effective manner to do so is to provide a local space that serves as a sanctuary and place for learning, sharing, and friendship.

Encircle’s mission is to “empower families to sustain the circle of their love, enabling each member to thrive” and “to embrace and sustain every LGBTQ+ youth, every family and every community.”

Their aim isn’t simply to help out the youth of Utah, but also the communities in general through the promotion of love and education. Encircle members do not embrace labels, stereotypes, cultural norms, bias, or prejudice. They seek to empower and champion each and everyone.

"We celebrate every individual and their potential. We celebrate their stories, their milestones and their journeys. We celebrate often and revel in each other's accomplishments and successes."

Teen Suicide in Utah

Questions to Ask:
- How at risk are LGBTQ Utahns?
- What roles do religion and technology play?
- Why does Utah, like other Intermountain West states, have such a high suicide rate?
- What can be done to help prevent suicidal tendencies?
- What institutions and methods have been successful elsewhere?
- What can I do and how can I help?

Facts and Stats:
- Suicide is the leading cause of death over car accidents.

Causes:
- No one specific reason or cause has yet to be identified
- Problems within family and home/loss thereof
- Social stress due to personal beliefs and external pressure
- Diagnosable mental disorders
- Drug or alcohol abuse
- Relationship problems

Solutions/Prevention:
- More data must be gathered to further assess the causes and factors.
- Reinstitute practices and methods that were successful in the past.
- Educate parents, children, and educators.
- Reinforce family relationships through wholesome activities.
- Legislative action against harmful substances and actions.
- Provide positive environments within homes, schools, and communities.

We need... to learn more!
This space is an instant reminder the moment you enter the building that YOU are not a nobody. That you are a resilient and influential individual. That you are cherished and flawless, and that you are a sensational person ready to be enriched and to enrich others.

This space is to be warm and inviting with softer lighting, warm colors, and round sofa large enough to sit a small group.

The message boards resemble the colors of the rainbow and communicate that all within the LGBTQ community are welcome.
inspirational role models

Will Smith
Willard Carroll Smith Jr. is an actor and rapper who has built a reputation as a motivational speaker and strong advocate for personal productivity and making oneself the best person possible. He was born September 25, 1968 and has become one of the most powerful actors ever. Will continues in his profession, but now as a husband and father figure as well.

Ellen DeGeneres
Ellen is a television host, comedian, and actor who is a highly well-known LGBTQ activist and humanitarian. She came out as a lesbian in 1997 and since then has been extremely influential throughout the world even to the point of being named the 50th most powerful woman in the world by Forbes.

Gus Kenworthy
Gus is a professional skier and the first openly gay male to compete in the Winter Olympics. He was born October 1, 1991 and was raised in Telluride, Colorado. As a professional LGBTQ athlete, Kenworthy is a highly backed advocate for LGBTQ rights and the fight against HIV/AIDS.

Rosa Parks
Rosa Louise McCauley Parks was a civil rights activist and is best known for her refusing to give up her seat on a bus to a white person on December 1, 1955 in Montgomery, Alabama. Parks is known as “the first lady of civil rights” and later received the Spingarn Medal, the Presidential Medal of Freedom, and the Congressional Gold Medal for her contributions to the civil rights movement. Rosa passed away October 24, 2005 at the age of 92.
The Binary Lamp is the physical embodiment of Encircle's drive to provide strength and belonging to modern youth.

Only two shapes were used to design the Binary Lamp: the circle and the triangle. "The circle is an example of balance and unity. In a perfect circle, all points are equal and relevant" (ENCIRCLE). The triangle is the strongest shape. A triangle evenly distributes weight from external forces. Combine the two and an unbreakable message is created.

Bi-na-ry: relating to, composed of, or involving two things.
